Preliminary Note

In view of the extraordinary demand at the present time for the work of Chinese and Japanese artists, we are fortunate in being able to offer, by public competitive sale, the Collection of Mr. John H. Webster, of Cleveland, Ohio, President of the Variety Iron and Steel Works Company of that city, and a collector of Oriental Art objects for the past thirty-five years.

Mr. Webster's collection excels in the divisions of Jade and Lacquer. The Chinese say of the former: "The Magic Powers of Heaven and Earth are ever combining to form perfect results. So the pure essences of Hill and Water become solidified into precious Jade"; and no better words could introduce this group of more than one hundred pieces of the marvelous mineral. The Chinese never ornamented Jade except by sculpture; it was prized by them on account of its rarity, its vague translucency, and a texture at once firm and smooth, which lends itself to the formation of the Lotus, the Peach of Longevity and the Sacred Symbols in an imperishable material (see Nos. 776, 782, 788). The pieces described as "Tomb Jade" are so called from the Chinese "Han Yu," or Jade placed in the mouth of a corpse before burial, and the meaning has been extended to include the Jade found in ancient tombs (Nos. 709, 721, 723, 728, 738, 786, etc.). Closely related to Jade in quality and workmanship are the massive jars, vases and temple ornaments carved by the Chinese from Rock Crystal, Rose Quartz, Lapis Lazuli, Malachite and Amethyst (Nos. 664 to 690).

It would be difficult to gather a finer collection of Lacquer than that described in the following pages. The brilliancy and beautiful color of these pieces cannot be shown by any pictorial reproduction; they must be examined to be appreciated. Some idea may be gained from these artistic examples of the patience, persistence and unceasing care used by the Japanese in bringing each piece to perfection. Their method of producing the effect of gold, silver and Shakudo, their combining lacquer with pottery, pewter and other metals, is shown to the best advantage in the variety and artistic harmony of decoration of the various pieces in Mr. Webster's large collection. The examples of Shunsho I., Soami, Moriami, Koyetsu and others, dating from the Fifteenth Century (Nos. 571, 572, 593, 599, 624 and 642), are followed by later artists of high rank, Ritsuo, Korin and Shunsho (Nos. 621, 631, 632 and 638). The Japanese sense of artistic values is shown in the highest degree in the decorations, from a spray of Kiri-Mon, the floral badge of the Mikado's family on a background of luminous polished gold, which forms a simple but exquisite decoration, in strong contrast to the Lady's Writing Box, by Kajikawa Fusataka, a signed piece of about 1790 (No. 608), or the modern Okihirame Box (No. 636).

Chinese Religion, Mythology and Emblems are used in these and other forms of Decorative Art, particularly in the adornment of porcelains, and the vases, jars and other objects in Polychrome, Monochrome and Blue-and-White decoration are deserving of intelligent examination. The connoisseur will delight in the various shades of Mohammedan, Cobalt, Mazarine and Powdered Blue, the Ivory, Cream and Wax White Glazes, the Reds from Peach to Lang Yao Sang-de-Bœuf, as well as the delightful blending of color in the decorated pieces seen in the Yung Ching Hawthorn Jar (No. 215), the Kang Hsi White Paste Vase (No. 242), the iridescence of the Silvery Apple-Green Bottle (No. 292) and the Ming Lang Yao Vase (No. 291).

Many of these fine pieces have been acquired from the Bing (Paris), Waggaman, Wells, Dana, Bishop and other Collections, and when traced this has been noted in the catalogue. Chinese Dynasties and Periods are given at the beginning of the sale of Chinese Porcelains on Thursday evening. Other divisions of the catalogue will be found to include items of great interest, as Swords, Bronzes, Japanese Pottery and Porcelain. The Swords, for instance, contain the finest workmanship in gold, silver, bronze, and alloys. This weapon occupies a peculiar place in Japan, where formerly it was almost an object of worship, and for centuries the best work of the most famous artists in metal has been devoted to its decoration. The blades are usually signed, and sometimes the date and other particulars are given. Mr. Webster's Collection includes the work of several famous artists: the Dress Sword (No. 429) by Bizen, dating from about 1400; one by Sadamune, even earlier; Hiromitsu and Munehiro date from the Fourteenth Century; Kanemichi, whose date was about 1500; and the noted artists of the Seventeenth Century, Masamitsu and Umetada. Special attention is called to the fine library of Works of Reference to be sold on Friday afternoon. Among the books are Siebold's "Nippon," the first English edition of Kaempfer's "History of Japan, 1727," the Walters, Morse, Anderson and Tomkinson Catalogues, Gorer's "Chinese Porcelains and Hard Stones," Bing's "Artistic Japan," and the earliest of the Jesuit Relations of Japan.

The catalogue has been prepared under the supervision of Mr. O. Fukushima, of this city, an Oriental expert of profound knowledge and long experience. The sale of the second part will follow after the holidays. The fine collection of carved ivories, netsukes, and inros are to be sold in Part II., with additional items from nearly every division of the present catalogue, including many pieces of special interest.
